REMEDIAL READING PROGRAM
TO BEGIN THURSDAY AT UM

MISSOULA--

The University of Montana School of Education will offer a special program in remedial reading for students in grades 1 through 12 during the second 4 1/2-week Summer Session beginning Thursday (July 16). Registration deadline is Tuesday (July 14).

Dr. James J. Munro, a professor of education at UM and director of the Summer School Reading Laboratory, said experienced teachers will handle small groups with one to four students in each. Special classes also will be held for college students and high school students who intend to go to college.

Included in the advanced program for college and high school students will be instructions on how to take notes in class, study textbooks, improve reading speed and comprehension, and prepare for examinations.

Registration for the classes may be made by phoning Dr. Munro at 243-2622 or 549-3377, or by calling the School of Education at 243-4911 by July 14. An $8 fee will be charged for the class.
